

George Washington's Farewell Address

September 19, 1796

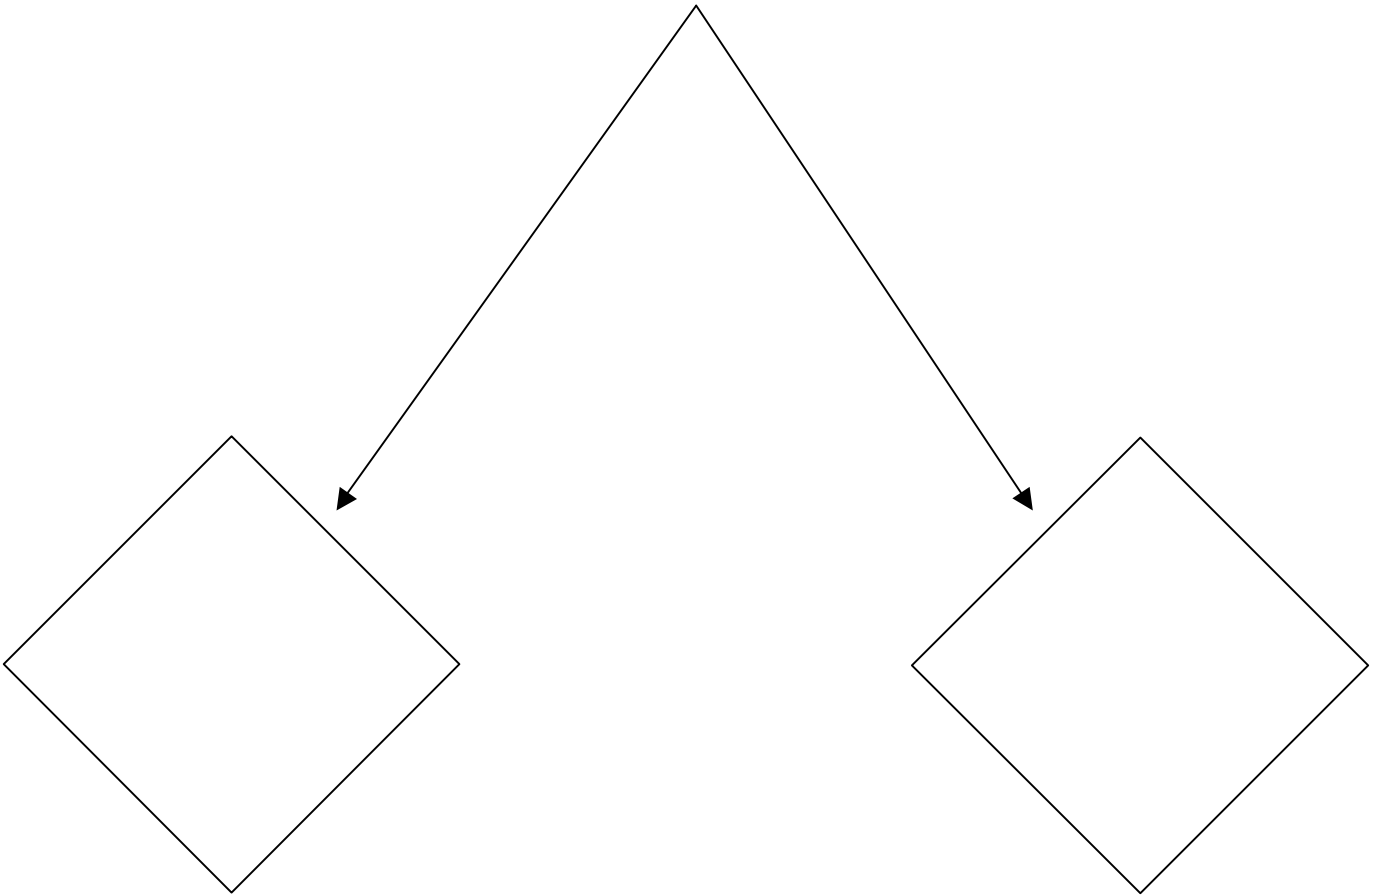

I have already intimated [warned] to you the danger of [political] parties in the State, with particular reference to the founding of them on geographical discriminations [differences]...

It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances [agreements] with any portion of the foreign world...

Though in reviewing [looking at] the incidents of my Administration I am unconscious of intentional error, I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects [faults] not to think it probable that I may have committed [made] many errors. Whatever they may be, I fervently beseech the Almighty to avert or mitigate [forgive] the evils to which they may tend. I shall also carry with me the hope that my country will never cease to view them with indulgence, and that, after 45 years of my life dedicated to its service with an upright zeal, the faults of incompetent abilities will be consigned [sent] to oblivion, as myself must soon be to the mansions of rest.
