

GUNSLINGERS AT ALAMO STADIUM 1984 & 1985

PICTURES COURTESY OF THE SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS

How cheap was Manges? Well, rather than play at a more modern facility that might cost an extra few bucks, Manges chose for the Gunslingers to play their home games at Alamo Stadium. Not to be confused with today's Alamodome, Alamo Stadium was a nice, cozy high school facility that had a capacity of roughly 18,000. Seating was increased to 32,000 and new AstroTurf was put in at the league's urging, but they needn't have bothered - the Gunslingers drew 18,233 for their 1984 home debut against the New Orleans Breakers, and only cracked the 20,000 mark in attendance once that season, in a Week 14 match-up against the Denver Gold.

Dr. Victor Rodriguez

For more information, go to <http://www.usfl.info/gunslingers/>